

Spotify Reimagined

As a UI/UX designer, I wanted to spruce up the look and make the interface easier to use. Plus, I threw in a new tab that wasn't there before - the profile screen. Now, users can jazz up their profiles however they like, kinda like how musicians want to show off their vibe. The idea is to make everything more user-friendly and give people a space that feels more chill and customized.

Tabs make it a breeze to explore new artists, create and curate playlists, connect with friends, and navigate directly to your profile no need to load a new page every time. It's all about smooth and direct vibes!
